

Our international team routinely assists clients who are relocating themselves and their business affairs from one country to another. We are also able to assist clients with formal applications for citizenship and residency schemes operated by a number of countries.

Why the UAE?

In recent years, the United Arab Emirates (UAE) has been consistently rated as the best country in the Middle East to live in. Over 200 nationalities have made the UAE their home.

Nearly 80 per cent of people living in the UAE are expatriates, creating a culturally diverse environment with a wide choice of lifestyle, dining and entertainment options.

The UAE is politically stable with a low crime rate. It is located within an eight hour flight radius of the majority of the world's population.

The UAE has no personal income, corporate or withholding taxes.

UAE Residency

UAE residence visas are issued for two or three years and visa holders are not required to permanently reside in the UAE, only to visit the country at least once every 180 days.

Setting up a free-zone company is a practical way for foreigners to obtain residency visas.

Free Zones are specific areas in the country where companies may be set up with 100% foreign ownership. The company must have a physical presence in the UAE because the number of visas that can be obtained under the sponsorship of the company depends on the size of its office.

There are more than 40 free zones in the UAE where foreigners can set up companies and obtain residence visas.
